

Direct Speech	Modal Verbs and Adverbs	Spelling
Rewrite the assistant's words as direct speech using a reporting clause beforehand. That'll be six pounds exactly. _____ _____ _____	Underline the modal verb or adverb of possibility in each sentence. Fatimah might be able to attend the party. Ali had perhaps lost his wallet when he was at the shopping centre. 	Help Mr Whoops unjumble these 'ough' words. loguhath _____ goulph _____
Relative Clauses	Commas	Homophones
Add commas around the relative clause in this sentence. The Valentine's Day bouquet which contained red roses and pink carnations was delivered to Megan's door. 	Explain how the comma changes the meaning of this sentence. I don't smell Bobby. I don't smell, Bobby. _____ _____ _____ _____	Write two separate sentences that correctly use 'practise' and 'practice'. _____ _____ _____ _____ _____

Direct Speech	Modal Verbs and Adverbs	Spelling
Rewrite the assistant's words as direct speech using a reporting clause beforehand. That'll be six pounds exactly. Accept correctly punctuated direct speech with an appropriate reporting clause beforehand, e.g. The assistant said, "That'll be six pounds exactly."	Underline the modal verb or adverb of possibility in each sentence. Fatimah might be able to attend the party. Ali had perhaps lost his wallet when he was at the shopping centre.	Help Mr Whoops unjumble these 'ough' words. loguhath although goulph plough
Relative Clauses	Commas	Homophones
Add commas around the relative clause in this sentence. The Valentine's Day bouquet, which contained red roses and pink carnations, was delivered to Megan's door.	Explain how the comma changes the meaning of this sentence. I don't smell Bobby. I don't smell, Bobby. Accept any response explaining how the first version means the person does not smell Bobby but the second version is the person telling Bobby they do not smell.	Write two separate sentences that correctly use 'practise' and 'practice'. Accept any sentence where 'practise' is used in the correct context as a verb and another where 'practice' is used as a noun.